Auditor General DePasquale to Hold Town Hall Meeting to Listen, Discuss Ideas for Improving Public Schools in Scranton

HARRISBURG – Auditor General Eugene DePasquale today invited the Scranton community to a town hall meeting on Jan. 23 to discuss ideas for improving public schools.

“I want to hear directly from students, teachers, and parents about how we can come together as a community to improve public schools,” DePasquale said.

“It’s time we give the community a chance to be heard and discuss their ideas that could move public education forward in Scranton and focus on educating students.

“We are reaching a critical point where major public education decisions are being made that affect the entire community, and I want to hear directly from the people most affected,” he said.

The Auditor General’s town hall meeting will be held in the evening on Wednesday, Jan. 23 in Scranton. The specific location will be announced in the near future.
